

Zane B. Stein ...bio

Zane B. Stein has been a professional astrologer since 1971. In 1977 he spearheaded the committee that led to the world's first Chiron ephemeris, and the following year organised an international group to collect and collate astrological and astronomical research on the new body (the Association for Studying Chiron), which led to publishing a newsletter, "The Key," which included contributions from astrologers across the world. He has written numerous articles on Chiron, Centaurs and bodies past Pluto such as Eris, and continues with his ongoing research. He has spoken about Chiron in many parts of the USA, Canada, England, Scotland and Ireland.

Zane is the author of:

"Essence and Application: A View from Chiron," and is currently working on a new Chiron book.
